INSTITUTE OF INDIAN AVIATION AND ALLIED MANAGEMENT STUDIES

WHERE THE SKY IS THE LIMIT

The Institute of Indian Aviation and Allied Management (IIAAM) Studies was founded in 2009 as a degree college emphasising job-focused aviation programs. In 2013, it transformed into a non-profit body, to foster a range of programs and courses, and skill development activities

BUILDING STABLE ALLIANCES

IIAAM has formed collaborations with aviation organisations all over the world to deliver unparalleled expertise. The team cultivates long-term partnerships with these organisations to lay the groundwork for continued cooperation on safety performance and the advancement of aviation policies. While providing commercial services, the institution reinvests a portion of the gains for the betterment of the aviation community through the IIAAM NGO. The NGO offers scholarships and promotes teaching methods tailored to the needs of the industry and the professional development of aviation career aspirants.

SERVING THE COMMUNITY

The institution offers the IIAAM Foundation Merit Scholarship to support the development of the aviation sector and mentor students who will lead the industry in future. Through this program, the foundation hopes to aid deserving aviation students in obtaining education at prestigious aviation colleges and universities. Through this scholarship, undergraduate or graduate aviation students can get up to INR 90,000 for each course to help with their educational costs. The program also provides mentorship opportunities to selected candidates, building a solid network of young aviation professionals.

TOWARDS A PROMISING FUTURE

With an eye on future and a strong focus on Karnataka and Tamil Nadu, IIAAM is prepared to expand its services to several other colleges and institutions throughout India. It is also awaiting its application's outcome for global ranking through Presidency University. Additionally, it is developing online courses to give students access to top aviation education platforms from anywhere in the world. The team is using Bangalore North University's syllabus to prepare textbooks on aviation.

Headquartered in Bengaluru, the highly esteemed research-centric and skill management-focused institution, IIAAM plays a crucial role in promoting professional and administrative programs, degrees, and developmental skills, along with aviation, certificate courses, and diplomas in various subjects that increase employability in multiple industries, including aviation and related media and entertainment industries. It is established to address the need for specialisation in corresponding fields throughout the international job market.

IIAAM provides students a perfect chance to undertake innovative initiatives, form partnerships, and share best practices with esteemed academics and business professionals. It has been working diligently to revolutionise the aviation business by offering students options for upskilling and top-notch education under the direction of its Vice President, Dr. Lizy Kalaga. The leader has been instrumental in developing the IIAAM online school and a mobile app to increase accessibility, ensuring that prospective students have easy access to learning resources.

OFFERING A RANGE OF SERVICES

Since its inception, IIAAM has provided training services in personnel and talent administration and functional aviation issues with more than 50 highly qualified instructors. The institute strives to uphold its reputation as a dependable aviation management training organisation.

The team at IIAAM has designed and developed internal and external aviation courses, including MBA Aviation, BBA Aviation, and various certification programs for cabin crew, cargo, passenger services, safety and security, and ramps, along with grooming, spoken English, and professional development programs with universal content. These rigorously designed training programs on aviation procedures add value to the business.
